Students say Mounties, too, recruiting young spies vs. RCMP: Haven't got nickel for that kind of thing'

By RON COLLISTER Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA - Douglas Ward, president of the Canadian Union Students, charged Tuesday that the RCMP has been trying to get students to spy for them for 15 years.

But the RCMP scoffed at the suggestion that it offers to pick up the tab for co-operative students travelling abroad. 'We haven't got a nickle for that kind of thing," an RCMP source said. (See also Page 3.)

The uproar over students being used as spies burst over disclosures that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency channeled "front" groups to students and others, in the U.S. and abroad. Andre l'Hereux, a former executive secretary of the Canadian Union of Students, said the RCMP tried to recruit him

WHAT COULD WELL be a direct result of the recent talks between Russia's chairman of the council of ministers, Mr. Alexei Kosygin, and Britain's prime minister, Mr. Harold Wilson, is the suggestion made in London that North Atlantic Treaty allies can now reduce their garrison forces in Europe with confidence.

The defence secretary, Mr. Dennis Healey, believes that a reduction of both NATO and Warsaw Pact adherents' armies in Europe is the best way of achieving a detente.

In other words, he is saying it is simply a waste of money to keep huge land forces in Europe in a posture of preparedness when nations of the West no longer have any reason to fear Soviet-inspired aggression either against Berlin or West Germany from any

"It is difficult to believe," as Mr. Healey puts it, "that any rational government, knowing these facts, would reckon to achieve by the use of force against Western Europe any political objective whose value would be remotely commensurate with the appalling

It would appear, then, that the initiative for pursuing a detente has shifted from Paris to London, although it must be admitted that General Charles de Gaulle made the first important move in that direction with his withdrawal of support for the NATO alliance.

Mr. Healey's attitude no doubt is governed in large measure by his anxiety for reduction of the $6 billion British defence budget and to this end the withdrawal of some of the 50,000 British troops now in West Germany would largely contribute. Canada, too, might save a few millions by reducing, in agreement with her allies, her small but highly efficient military establishment in Europe.

It has been reported that Russia has already substantially reduced her forces in East Germany, whether to encourage reciprocal withdrawal by NATO nations or not is, of course, debatable. But they should be given the benefit of any doubt. What is certain is that the Kremlin has far more reason for concern for the eastern frontier than the western at this time with China's Mao Tse-tung and his cohorts continuing their aggressive diatribes against their big

It remains to convince the United States that Mr. Healey's way of thinking-and he speaks for his government-is logical and that the risk of aggression against the West has diminished nearly to vanishing

It may not be easy; but if the United Kingdom sults its action to Mr. Healey's words and commences a reduction of its garrison in Europe it might help. There is no doubt that those talks in London between Wilson and Mr. Kosygin have created an atmosphere where distrust and suspicion no longer are

Career Hazard

IN LIGHT OF THE present state of Canada's department of defence some interest in this country may be evoked by a comment made by Professor Louis Halle of Geneva's Institut Universitaire des Hautes Etudes Internationales on the subject of whether senior civil servants should be free to discuss the policies of their departments in public.

The permanence of any permanent career service civil or military, he says, depends on the principle of a division of responsibility between politicians and the career servants they command. The elected members of government are responsible to the public for the policies adopted while the civil servants carry them out-whether they like it or not.

Civil servants, he adds, may propose, but only their political masters dispose. He points out that under the American system, civil servants, foreign service officers and military officers often find themselves having to testify publicly before congressional committees on the policies of their temporary masters to the prejudice of the career principle.

This requirement confronts them, time and again, with a conflict between their obligation to testify truly and their obligation not to oppose in public the policies of their political masters.

Moreover, he continues, if their public testimony provokes public criticism, as it occasionally does, they may not answer their critics because discipline of the

"In an era of 'McCarthyism' career officers were often subjected to scurrilous attacks against which they were not allowed to defend themselves." After the war, he says, the U.S. state department had its civil servants and foreign service officers go about the country "explaining" the foreign policy of the day. This, he feels, was a mistake because it resulted in civil servants becoming publicly identified with that policy. He calls on civil servants to appreciate the implications for the continuing integrity of their own service if they allow themselves to become publicly identified with the political policies of a passing government, and questions whether it is conducive to good government for-civil servants to have to consider possible political risks to themselves when they ponder what advice to give their superiors. He concludes: "The human aversion to martyrdom is such that ministers can hardly count on getting honest and dispassionate advice from their civil servants if it cannot be given in confidence." What do you think, Mr. Hellyer?

MR. LLOYD R. CROUSE (Queens-Lunenberg): . . Nobody doubts that Gordon MacGregor runs Air Canada, but when I look at some of the CBC programs I begin to suspect that the CBC is somewhat like a rudderless ship operating without a captain. I cannot help but believe that this is exactly what is wanted by the so-called creative minds employed by the corporation. The idea is to keep things in an uproar. They believe in the freedom of the CBC, freedom being an all-embracing word which should cover their bad taste, sensationalism and irresponsible actions. Rapacki Visit to Lead To East-West Detente?

By ROBERT C. TOTH From London

Polish foreign minister Adam Rapacki arrived here

amid increasing talk of an East-West detente. Britain is expected to start illing 10,000 to 20,000 of her 63,000 troops out of West Germany late this year, and British government would like Warsaw bloc countries to reciprocate with a cutback on the other side of the iron

High officials here say there is a very good chance of such reciprocity. If so, ther Rapacki, who is one of East Europe's best known inventors of detente schemes, may be willing to confirm it and suggest Communist conditions for a trade.

His visit comes a week before the resumption here of talks by the United States, Britain and West Germany aimed at getting the Germans to help meet the foreign exchange costs of keeping British and American troops in its territory.

To be successful, the tripartite meeting will have to get a new American plan and probably offers of more American money. Meanwhile, the Germans apparently are preparing to renege on an $88,000,000 offer made to Britain last year.

seems unlikely since the United States loses $725,000,-000 annually in keeping 225,000 men in West Germany, and Congress is making noises about bringing some of them home — 45,000 or more — to reduce the U.S. gold outflow.

tripartite talks will probably not prevent at least some British withdrawals, and if Rapacki should show symreciprocal cut in Communist troops, the British pullout might be easier and larger than now anticipated.

Secret Franco-German Deal Made

By NORA BELOFF from London secret deal affecting Britain's Common Market hopes has been made between General Charles de Gaulle and West Germany's Chancellor Kurt-Georg Kiesinger.

Neither Premier Bennett nor Resources Minister Williston who would have been directly affected by the fishermen's presentation, were present, Mr. Stevens said.

The brief expressed disap-pointment at the government's failure to show leadership in the fishing industry and concern about pollution which poses a direct threat to the industry. It stated that the B.C. fishing industry, which landed an enti-mated $112,000,000 worth of fish products in 1966, "deserves far more attention" than that which can be done on the commercial fisheries branch 1967-68 budge of $35,802.

PLANNING URGED

It suggested that a federalprovincial planning committee be struck to develop the off-shore fishing potential, and that the industry cannot be upgraded without:

I saw so many films about Alaska and other parts of the United States that I thought it was time we should show some British Columbia pictures," Bricker says,

His films have all been taken in the Bowron Lakes and Bowron River area of the Interior, south of Prince George, where he has a 900-square-mile guiding area. There are no blood-curdling shooting scenes, but he does show the hunting of moose and one special sequence shows how, with a camouflaged canoe, he stalked and photographed moose on their summer feeding grounds.

He has been a trapper and game guide for 30 years and some of the scenes in his pictures have been 15 years in the above the timberlines, he has pictured beavers building dams and youns, bottle-fed leavers, the migration flights of the majestic Canada geese and small fur-bearing animals including mink, fisher, beaver and lynx. Of special interest to anglers are scenes of lucrative ice fishing for rainbow trout in below-zero weather.

His films are being sponsored by the Victoria Fish and Game Club and proceeds will go to finance the junior firearms safety program. Price is $1 for adults, 50 cents for youngsters 16 and under. Films start at 8 p.m. at Oak Bay Junior High School Friday and Saturday.

In the past three years the Victoria Fish and Game Club has given its junior firearms safety course to close to 500 youngsters. This year the course is being extended to students in all three lower Island school districts as part of their school

Sooke sportsmen are moving towards formation of their man fish and game club. Kjell Pedersen, a member of the Victoria club, has called a meeting for 8 p.m., March 6 in the dining room of the Sooke Community Hall for all those

Among those active in the new group are Sooke RCMP chief Lew Dempsey and famed log birler Jubiel Wickheim. Pedersen may be reached at 642-3263.

Interest in a Sooke fish and game organization was activated last fall when Sooke logging companies suggested a plan for opening up a series of lakes behind their logging gates for public fishing, if the fish and wildlife branch would stock them with trout.

MacMillan Bloedel Limited reports 47,585 outdoors enflusiasts used their logging roads in 1966, bringing the four-year 1963-66 total of outdoors users to 201,061 visitor days.

In 1966 hunters and fishermen caught 25,127 sports fish, and harvested 4,506 deer and 2,208 grouse, as well as other game from company logging claims.

from company logging claims.

"The figures demonstrate MB's access program is one of the outstanding examples of multiple use of land in Canada," says H. R. Chisholm, assistant vice-president and general manager of MacMillan Bloedel's logging group.

"The logging roads are built and maintained by the ompany to harvest the lorest crop, but they are opened to the public when logging operations are not underway," he

But there is a sad note. Unfortunately, as in other years, a small group of visitors showed no respect for the property of others. During 1966 the company recorded losses of $40.896 due to vandalism, theft and fire which was traced to visitors, the highest losses since MB's access program. Timber losses due to fire caused by careleasness were $9,550; damage to equipment and other vandalism cost the company $11,850, and tools and other equipment stolen amounted to $19,496.

When completed the Hall of Fame will be the museum part of Golf House, and, as such, it will be a suitable repositor for the memorabilia of the game. Old golf clubs, golf balls, and old trophies will be among the items required to make an interesting exhibition.

I know that the late Walter Gravlin of Uplands had at one time a collection of fine old clubs—one of them the Willie Park driver he donated to the District Committee. It is now the trophy for the inter-club annual championship contest.

I believe also that Walter Gravlin had the first set of golf clubs to penetrate into the Golden West. If my memory serves me correctly Walter told me they had been brough out to Winnipeg by a young Scottish emigrant. If this is so these are historic weapons.

Anyone with historical souvenirs they would like to put on exhibition in the Hall of Fame should get in touch with me for a starter.

GENEVA (CP) — President Johnson invited Russia Tuesday to join in conducting peaceful nuclear blasts for the benefit of countries that would be banned under a projected treaty from owning nuclear weapons. Johnson made the proposal in a message to the 17-nation disarmament conference, which hopes to have the treaty written by the time the General Assembly meets in New York in September. Tons. Parents Angry, Doctors Concerned

Student Girls 'Misusing' the Pill

By KENNETH RUSSELL

City physicians Tuesday night expressed "extreme concern' over apparent widetives by unmarried Victoria girls - especially young teenagers.

They said such use of the pill for promiscuous inter-course would encourage spread of venereal disease and charged that women with prescriptions were mainly at fault in supplying the girls with the contraceptives. Hint of misuse of the pill first arose when angry parents at a PTA sex educaion discussion in North Saanich Monday night charged the contraceptive was being used by student girls. "This misuse has caused us very considerable concern," a city gynecologist said

Unwed Teen Mother Speaks Up

An unwed Victoria teen-age mother has appealed to welfare agencies to publish her history "to stem the tide of pre-marital intercourse."

But in her eagerness to present her story as a lesson, the distraught 17-year-old mother's appeal advocates frightening teen-age school girls into a belief that welfare agencies will allow illegiti-mate babies to be "abandoned and left on doorsteps or sold to the wrong kind of parents."
(According to a 1967 report from the National Council on

"should not be exposed to the threat of sterilization or the loss of welfare payments.") Nevertheless, the girl, whose appeal was known by city social worker Faye MacBride at a North Saanich-Sidney PTA meeting Monday night, continued:

The greatest grievance under which the Colouists labor is the want of a constitution that secures them a proper representation in the Legislative Council.

Taxation without representation is a genteel mode of depriving a man of his power to resist your demands and then rifting his pockets of their contents.

The modicum of liberty once enjoyed by the people of this Island was swept away by the Act of Union and in place of the Legislative Assembly, through the medium of which we were wont to make our wants known, we have the hybrid activation of W. LADIES! THE RED CROSS HOMEMAKERS SERVICE

NEEDS WOMEN TO SERVICE SEVERAL DISTRICTS

The Red Cross Homemakers Service requires warm, mature, understanding women who like children and are prepared to be away from their own homes for varying periods—daytime and 24-hour duty.

Victoria, Langford, Sidney districts are being searched for women who wish to do this service for the community. You will be paid, uniforms supplied and transportation covered. You will work under a supervisor, with further training as required.

Women who have the necessary time and who feel they can adapt themselves to the many different work situations they will encounter, are asked to come in for an interview. If you are interested in being a supervised homemaker, we would like to hear from you.

Mr. Beebe wanted Colquitz Creek, the major drainage system on Saanich Peninsula, restored from an ecologist's point of view. This meant every single element in the system of living things related to the creek should be remuch as possible.

He said the creek was being engineered out of existence by Saanich.

For example, each time bend in the creek was straightened, it meant the distance that water flowed

Such straightening removed eddies where fish could lurk. Each time a log was removed from the creek it meant the water would not be aerated to the degree it would under natural conditions.

"Instead of looking at this as a drainage ditch, look at it as a live, flowing stream," suggested Mr. Beebe.

He said there would be few access problems because the land through which the creek

Lighthouse Wave Damage $50,000

At Pine Island

Storm damage at Pine Island, ighthouse, off the northern tip to the lighthouse from tender of Vancouver Island, is even heavier than first thought and amounts to well over $50,000, the transport depart ment tearned Tuesday.

The tiny island was thumped by a monstrous 50-foot wave and pounded by 80-mile-an-hour gales last weekend that tore down the powerhouse, wrenched three of four diesel engines off their foundations and did extensive damage to one of the houses.

Word came from the ice-breaker Camsell after it arrived it Pine Island Tuesday morning.

at Pine Island Tuesday morning.
"The three dieuel engines were washed off the island," district marine agent L. E. Slaght said Tuesday night.
"There's no sign of them. They were torn right off their foundations."

There's no sign of them they were torn right off their foundations."

Mr. Slaght said the older of two houses was severely damaged and would have to be replaced sooner than planned. He said the hoist, A-frame and Lewis and his wife.

Buttle Lake Story Denied by Williston

Resources Minister Williston points which had recently has denied an earlier report caused three board permits to Western Mines to be ruled invalid by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

River water board will be allowed to appear before a Pollution Control Board hearing about pollution at Buttle Lake. It had been suggested that it any other group wanted to protest applications of Western Mines Ltd. to dispose of minestillings and sewage in Buttle Lake, they would have to do so through the water board.

Mr. Williston said the decision on who would be allowed to make presentations in the PCB. You can't have a board if they're there to do what we instruct them to do."

The resources minister said the board would have to make its own decision on the matter and that if anyone was dissatisfied with the board's decision, he could still appeal to the lieutenant-governor-in-council.

DELAY PROBLEM

Mr. Williston said Tuesday "the Pollution Control Board is a body unto itself. We recommended that they go back and start at the court decision.

Time Lag Awkward

Garden Notes

One of the problems I face in the preparation of these garden columns is he interval which must necessarily occur between the time I sit down to my typewriter to pound out one of these articles and the time it appears in print in the paper. This time lag can provide some rather embarrassing situations for me, for in our fickle climate anything can happen to the weather - and usually does - between the time I write a column and the time it is published.

For instance, today the sun may be shining brightly, with the temperature in the mid-50s. A nice drying wind is blowing, and the soil in the backyard is losing its excess moisture and reaching a state where a clod will fall apart and crumble at the touch of the rake. I am tempted to get out there and take a chance on a sowing of broad beans or early peas, and this is duly reported in

By the time this particular article appears in the paper, the weather has made a monkey out of me. It may be although at this time of the year it is usually a heavy downpour of rain which crosses me up. The backyard garden is a sea of liquid mud, yet here is a garden column suggesting that you wade out there and bung some seeds into the goo!

If you'll promise to laugh with me rather than at me, I'll confess I've already taken a chance on several sowings of seeds. This is actually against my better judgment, for all my past experience leads me to believe the Johnny-come-lately in outdoor seed sowing has a far better chance of success than the fellow who jumps the gun and sows too early.

I know this in my mind, but the heart and the hand are itching to get going, and a few days of sunshiny weather were too tempting to resist. In any case, seeds are cheap; if they rot in wet, cold ground or if the baby seedlings are drowned in puddles of water or nipped by late frosts, another 15-cent packet of seeds isn't going to break the bank.

Generally speaking, it isn't low temperatures that keep us dawdling around until April before we start sowing seeds outdoors.

The average date of our last killing frost is March 27 - this is average. mind you; in exceptional years we have had some dillies as late as May 26 but it isn't a difficult job to cover young seedlings with cloches, straw, bracken or even newspapers on nights when low temperatures threaten, thereby coasting them safely through a bad patch of weather.

A more serious limiting factor is the condition of the soil and, to a somewhat lesser degree, our chilly spring winds. Light sandy or gravelly soil dries off and warms up fairly rapidly, but on heavy ground with a high clay content, you can't even walk on it, much less dig in it while it remains wet and sticky without doing irreparable damage to its

In Thursday's column I'll discuss some artificial aids for early outdoor seed sowing.

Color Blindness

Recently, every newspaper related the day-to-day events in the real life drama of a small child and a couple who wanted to adopt her.

The burning question was, 'Could this blonde, blue-eyed child, left at the age of five days in the care of a dark-harred, brown-eyed Italian family, actually find happiness?

To mothers across the country, this had to be the most mainine controversy since "Is is better to spare the rod and spoil the child" or "Use the rod and spoil a great quota-

I rather like it this way. How dreary if we were a matched set, distinguished only by size. How dull to sit around a table and look at your reflection. How much more of an experience to have the carry-out boy look at your brown-eyed, red-haired son and ask, "Does your husband have red hair?" and to reply ever so slyly, "No." Ah, the bewilderment of his glance as Ethnics and complexion differences may or may not have been the complete story as reported. At any rate, it is comforting that the rules were relaxed not in the name of the law, but in the name of

Students say Mounties, too, recruiting young spies vs RCMP: say Mounties, too,

'Haven't got nickel for that kind of thing'

By RON COLLISTER Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA - Douglas Ward, president of the Canadian Union of Students, charged Tuesday that the RCMP has been trying to get students to spy for them for 15 years.

But the RCMP scoffed at the suggestion that it offers to pick the tab for co-operative students travelling abroad.

"We haven't got a nickle for that kind of thing," an RCMP source said. (See also Page 3.) The uproar over students being used as spies burst ever disclosures that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency channeled millions of dollars through "front" groups to students and others, in the U.S. and abroad.

Andre l'Hereux, a former executive secretary of the Canadian Union of Students, said the RCMP tried to recruit him as an on-campus spy between 1957- 1960. Student leaders attending conferences in Eastern Europe were offered the cost of the trips by the RCMP if they agreed to spy.

Mr. Ward, 28, the CUS president, called a news conference to drop the latest "bomb-To the best of his knowledge, he said the RCMP first contacted the CUS in the early 1950s They were interested, he in getting information from its observers attending international student meetings, particularly in Eastern Europe. "The RCMP was told," he said, "that it could receive only those reports and publications which were openly available to the member of CUS and the We have no information that the RCMP made an offer to the union to subsidize any expenses of the organization.

Mr. Ward said he had telephoned five past presidents of the union and all had verified that they were visited by RCMP officers.

B.C. Stays Loyal

Premier Bennett said Tuesday his government has no intention of leading British Columbia out of Confederation.

But he repeated earlier charges that the federal Liberal government is guilty of "porkbarrel politics" and discriminated against B.C.

"These centralists in Ottawa are holding back B.C.," the premier said during consideration of his office expenditures in the legislature.

He tabled in the House a table of equalization grants which he said were agreed upon "in a ence. The table showed Saskatchewan wasn't to receive any equalization payments. "The premier of Saskatchewan went, not through the conference, but straight to Mitchell Sharp," Mr. Bennett said. The federal government then agreed to phase out Saskatchewan equalization payments over a five-year-period.

'ANABCHY, CHAOS'

"This was a political decision made by Liberal, pork-barrel politics," Mr. Bennett said.

Word came from the leebreaker Camsell after it arrived at Pine Island Tuesday morning.

"The three diesel engines were washed off the island," district marine agent L. E. Slaght said Tuesday night. "There's no sign of them. They were torn right off their foundations."

Mame Taylor Lost In City Hall Dust

Asyune knew how to mix a Mame Taylor?

Almile Relatedam, who is trying to bring some order out of the langual mean of the city archives on the third floor of City Hall, came acress the name of a drink in sense of his researches into the dusty past.

In 1903 in the Brown Jug Bar, one of Victoria's many drinking emperiums, "Mame Taylor" was one of the drinks advertised on a blankhourd at the rear of the bar.

"I have naked everywhere and no one has ever heard of the drink, let alone how to mix 16," Mr. Helmelson said Monday, "but surely there must be someone in Victoria who knows."

Bennett:

B.C. Stays Loyal

Premier Bennett said Tuesday his government has no intention of leading B.C. out of Confederation.

But he repeated earlier charges that the federal Liberal government is guilty of "porkbarrel politics" and discriminated against B.C. "These centralists in Ottawa are holding back B.C.," the premier said during debate of his office budget in the legislature.

He tabled in the House a table v of equalization grants which he said were agreed upon "in a sound, businesslike way" at last fall's federal-provincial conference. The table showed Saskatchewan wasn't to receive any equalization payments.

The premier of Saskatchewan went, not through the conference, but straight to Mitchell Sharp," Mr. Bennett said. The federal government then agreed
